CATTLE SHIPPED TO GUATEMALA C. A.

Shorthorns, Holsteins and Ayrshire Purebreds Sold to Central America.

Wisconsin dairy cattle are going into Guatemala, Central America. A carload of Milking Shorthorns, Holsteins and Ayrshires were shipped out of Janesville, Monday, by R. Johnson, a former Wisconsin resident, purchasing cattle and horses for breeders and sportsmen in Central America. The shipment was obtained in Rock and Richland counties, all the Milking Shorthorns coming from Rock.

The cattle will be shipped to New Orleans, a distance of more than 2,000 miles. The expense will run about $100 a head. In selecting the Milking Shorthorns, only dark horns and reds were taken, the Central Americans objecting to the white or light colored animals because of the ticks. On the other hand, the natives express a preference for the darker colored Holsteins over the black.

While Wisconsin dairymen watch pedigrees for blood lines showing production and show ring ability, Johnson explains that in Latin America there is an active business in the sale of registered fighting bulls, bred for fierceness and fighting strength. Instead of breeding for a good bull, they breed these fighting bulls for "being bad," and they are bad—no question about it. Families of these cattle are famous for producing bulls that can fight in the arena, and when there is a bull developed which refuses to charge or fight, it is a "blame" in the pedigree and always remembered.

Interest in dairying is increasing in Central America and many importations are being made with blooded stock, despite the climate disadvantages.

Johnson is also shipping back a carload of thoroughbred race horses. "People in Guatemala will spend almost any money for fast horses, but not on the price they will pay for dairy cattle," it was stated.

SURVIVOR OF LIGHT BRIGADE CHARGE, 87

Cedar Rapids, Ia. — Ellis Cutting, who believes he is the last survivor of the light brigade, whose charge was immortalized by Tennyson's poem, yesterday celebrated his 87th birthday.

At the time of charge of the light brigade against the Russians at Balaclava, Oct. 25, 1854, Mr. Cutting was 18. He later came to this country and shortly after the civil war, settled in Iowa, where for 45 years he was an employe of the Rock Island railroad.

The old soldier is in excellent health.

HONEY TALKS

(No. 6)
The little "pound" squares (they seldom weigh a pound) of comb honey that you buy in the stores are produced quite differently from the liquid honey that comes in cans and glass jars. Both, however, are made by the bees in the same cleanly, healthful way.

In comb honey the little square wood frames that surround the honey comb are made from basswood, and a thin sheet of pure beeswax, imprinted with the exact size and shape of the center of the honeycomb is fastened inside the frame. These empty frames or sections, as they are called, are then placed, 24 in a box or super and set on top of a strong colony of bees, a second story as it were, for the bees to finish and fill. The bees dislike to work in these small sections, and only do so when there is a great deal of nectar being secreted in the blossoms, and when there are many bees in the hive.

Hence comb honey is more difficult for the beekeeper to produce, and costs more per pound, also, than extracted or strained honey.

Choice comb honey is at the very apex of dairy, cleanly, healthful, sweet, it has been successfully imitated nor adulterated. The quantity produced each season is limited, and very often the price is below the actual cost of production, though it seems high to the consumer.

Many beekeepers are giving up the production of comb honey entirely, because of its uncertainty and the great possibility of failure.

Honey should never be stored in a cold, damp place. Comb honey, especially, should be kept where it is warm and dry. A dust-tight box in the kitchen or pantry is the best place for it.

BADGER INVENTS CROSSING DEVICE

Automatic Gates and Signals Designed to Promote Greater Safety.

Milwaukee — To promote greater safety from accidents at grade crossings, a new device has been invented by P. D. Mansfield, a Milwaukeean, and is described in patent papers as an automatic gate closer.

By the invention, gates at railroad crossings are closed automatically through pressure contacts placed under rails in waterproof steel boxes.

The operation of the device is described by Mr. Mansfield as follows: "When a train reaches a certain point near the crossing, where the starting device is located, rail pressure throws a relay in the housing of the gate. This starts a motor in operation through a train of gears and thus the gate is closed."

"Before the gate is closed, three green signal lights show on each side of the light of way. These are stationed on the arms of the gate. A bell is set off which continues to ring while the gates are down. The bell and signals are in operation fifteen seconds before the gates close. It takes five seconds for the gates to close, thus allowing ample time for the traffic to clear the crossing."

The invention has been patented in several countries and there are nine in all now issued, in addition to a patent pending in the United States, Mr. Mansfield states.

Several railroads have made arrangements to test out the invention of Mr. Mansfield, he says.

Christian Church
Revival Begins

Revival meetings at the First Christian church started with good audiences at both morning and evening services Sunday. Rev. Fred Hoyer, blind musician, sang at both services. His solo in the morning service was "Open the Gates of the Temple." He led the service in the evening and sang "Face to Face."

The Rev. L. A. Gilliland, pastor, based his morning sermon on the 15th chapter of Luke. The parables of the prodigal son, the lost coin, and the lost sheep were discussed as illustrations of different ways by which people are led away from God.

"The heedless prodigal son, who had been led away from his home, and the willfully lost sheep were searched for until found," said the Rev. Mr. Gilliland, "and it is our job to find the boys and girls who have wandered away from God. Some boys and girls may be going down to eternal death because you failed as Sunday school teachers and church officers to set them right example and help them to grow up into righteous men and women by removing pitfalls in the community."

The evening sermon topic was "Going a Little Farther." Services will be held each evening this week at 7:30. The pastor will preach each night except Monday, when Miss Mary Johnson, of the Wisconsin Wesleyan Rapids, will give an address. The missionary society will have a luncheon at 6:30 Monday night in the church dining room. Prof. and Mrs. Fred Hoyer will assist with the music each night. The sermon topic for Tuesday night will be "Faith, What It Is and How to Get It."

Crowds Hear Band
at Church Sunday

Appreciation of the splendid musical organization of the Fairbanks Morse band was evidenced at the Carroll Methodist church Sunday when the band, led by Director Fred R. Lohrke, gave two concerts to a large audience. In spite of the weather, the church was filled for afternoon concert and in the evening the side rooms were opened to accommodate the crowd.

One of the features in the evening was the playing of the "Anvil Chorus," with anvils. The singing of the male quartet was especially fine. Supper for the band was served at the church.

On the invitation of T. K. Overton, a trustee, the band agreed to give a concert next Sunday for the inmates of the Rock county poor farm.

BUSINESS GIRLS TO ORGANIZE CLUB

Seventy-five business girls are expected to attend a supper at the M. W. C. A. hall, Monday, at 7:30 p. m. when plans for the formation of a business girls club will be considered.

Stenographers, typists, bookkeepers, secretaries, and all girls who work in offices will be eligible to membership in the new club. However, the exact basis will be determined by those who join the club at the outset.

It is probable that a professional women's club will be organized soon, also. Such a club would probably confine its membership to women holding professional or important executive positions in business, educational and social service fields.

BEVERLY—Tonight and Tuesday
MASTERS OF MEN
From the novel by Morgan Roberts
THE GREATEST SEA PICTURE EVER SCREENED
Remember the MAINE
Fifteen years in this business, various contemporaries have entered the field with pretentious announcements, promising bigger and better entertainment, pretty catch lines to be sure, but especially hard to put over, when it is discovered that Janesville has always enjoyed in its theatres entertainment of the highest class, not excelled in many of the largest cities.
I feel therefore that the public should have the benefit of my knowledge of the possibilities of success in this particular line of business.
Right at this time the theatrical business is generally regarded as being most uncertain, as is evidenced by the fact that some of the largest theatres in the country have closed down, owing to the extremely high cost of operation and the over inflated state of the business generally.
Having been requested and asked by many of my friends and patrons as to the theatrical situation generally, I have endeavored to give the above information as I find it.
Respectfully Yours,
JAMES ZANIAS.

The world knows the history of the battle of Santiago when the Spanish fleet went crashing down under the expert fire and command of our American gunners. Here is one of the greatest dramas of all times—thrilled with thrills and the sweetest love story ever told—then the battle of Santiago—the sinking of battle ship Maine and the great naval fight as it actually happened at Santiago Bay.
FIGHTING BLOOD AND AESOP'S FABLES.
Matinee 10 and 25c. Evening 15 and 35c.
COMING WEDNESDAY-THURSDAY—"POVERTY OF RICHES" with Richard Dix, Loretta Joy, John Hoppers, Irene Hitch, Louise Loyely, Frankie Lee.—A very special attraction.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE BEVERLY.
The best that can be said of "Masters of Men" is that it features four good looking and likable stars, Wanda Hawley, Alice Calhoun, Earle Williams, and Cullen Landis. But they would be just as likable if they were not put through such strenuous action as the theme of this picture demands. Throughout the picture is a conflict for human life, from the time that one of the heroes, Cullen Landis, runs away to the navy after being falsely accused of crime by his sweetheart's brother, until the super-dramatic climax in battles of the Spanish-American war.

ELSIE JANIS WILL APPEAR AT MADISON

Elsie Janis, in a new kind of entertainment in which she has scored a big hit will make her appearance at the Central high school auditorium, Madison, on the night of Nov. 26. Elsie will give her imitations, her dances in costume, and a number of new ditties. She is assisted by a company of musicians and in this new entertainment has won her way this season as a strikingly interesting performance—one of the kind that places before a joyous feeling of having seen something worth while.

If I Were an Upholsterer—
I'd advertise that I would undertake to upholster that living room set and furnish draperies to match. I would make the old davenport look like new. My clever upholstery I could make an out-of-date piece of furniture fit in with a set of modern pieces.
I would go to people's homes with samples of material and would make an estimate on the work to be done.
Of course, I would advertise with Janesville Gazette. Want Ads. They're the best business getters I know of.

Y. W. DEDICATES LOVEJOY TABLET

Miss Cobb Lauds Spirit of Memorial at Fall
Rally.

"The Lovejoy Memorial Fund is especially significant as the largest public memorial in the history of our city, but the most remarkable feature about this gift is the spirit which prompted the donors to establish a fund for the development of a broader and higher life for the boys and girls of the community," said Miss Gertrude Cobb in her address dedicating the Lovejoy Memorial Tablet at the Y. W. C. A. Saturday night. The speaker emphasized the superiority of a living memorial of this nature over a material gift such as a statue or a fountain in whose memory the fund was established. Miss Cobb said: "Those of us who had the privilege of being acquainted with the man who is honored by this memorial, and who knew of his deep interest in community affairs, a memorial of this character seems especially appropriate."

After explaining the provisions by which the income from $50,000 is to be administered by the Y. W. C. A. for community work in behalf of the youth of Janesville, Miss Cobb said: "The Y. W. C. A. was chosen as one of the agencies to carry out this work because we had the organization equipped with the necessary staff to carry out the purpose, but the memorial is not a gift to the Y. W. C. A. The work done for girls on a community wide basis has been a great responsibility and the great privilege of having a part in this work. The income derived thus far has enabled the association to employ a community girls' work secretary, although the amount is not sufficient to cover the entire expense of having such a secretary."

12 Members Admitted.
The dedication of the memorial tablet was a feature of the fall rally, in attendance despite the unfavorable weather conditions. The nominating committee which will report at the next meeting in January was elected as follows: Misses Gertrude Cobb, Olive Lathrop, Ida Blush, DeWitt Miller, Madeline J. T. Pritchett and Frank Slinger.

New Plan Outlined.
Miss Mabel Head, Chicago, national lecturer, gave an address on "The Proposed Basis of Membership." She explained that a new basis of membership is to be voted upon at the national convention next spring. If favorable action is taken at that time, the matter will mean a second convention two years later before going into effect. It is also intended that the new plan will offer an alternative basis of membership which may or may not be adopted by a local association. The proposed basis is that any woman who subscribes to the purpose of the Y. W. C. A. and is a full voting member of the association, regardless of her church affiliation. The new plan is termed the "personal basis" and is now being used by many student associations.

A social hour followed the program. Punch was served by the Athletic association.

Delegation to Older Boys' Conference

Janesville organizations, including the churches and Y. M. C. A., are planning to send a large delegation to the Wisconsin Older Boys' Conference to be held in Wausau, Nov. 20, Dec. 1, 2, 3.

J. K. Amot, county secretary, is serving on the advisory committee and promotion committee. A. C. Preston is also on the latter. Others from this section who are serving are: Orin Loftis, Oxfordville, secretary of the conference; and C. G. Sprague, Beloit; H. T. Judd, Delavan; and R. E. McNally, Lake Geneva, are on the promotion committee.

Kurt Bucher, a former resident of this city, and now boys' work secretary at Wausau, will have the task of furnishing recreation for the delegates. The conference will make its headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. building there, although various meetings will take place in the churches. It is expected that between 600 and 700 will attend. Janesville sent about 15 last year.

GIRL FIRS IN DOG STORY EVENT NEW PHONE PLAN FOR CITY HALL

$15 Prize Goes to Janesville Child—Afton Girl Is Second.

To Mary Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Joyce, 274 Riverside street, and a pupil of the eighth grade at St. Mary's school, goes $15 prize in the dog story contest conducted this past week by Manager James Zalus, Apollo theater. Dorothy Jean Clark, Afton, won the second prize of $5 in gold and Donald Richards, 126 South Third street, won the third prize of $5 in gold. The winners may obtain their prizes at the Apollo theater.

At the contest, ordered were of commendable nature and it was with much care that the three judges, selected from the Janesville Gazette, finally reached their decisions. Children of all ages in the schools of this city, Afton and the country district responded with well written and interesting papers on "The Dog-Man's Best Friend."

One of the children related their own experiences to prove their subject, while others wrote essays on dogs in general. The winners of the contest emphasized the facts that dogs are faithful and true friends and that a good dog given a trust, like the care of a child, does rather than fail in its duty, and that dogs have none of the bad habits of other animals when in eating and drinking, and smoking.

One of the winners told of being attacked by an angry buck and of her dog fighting off the animal until she was able to get away.

The contest was held in connection with the great dog picture being shown at the Apollo theater this week, "Where the North Begins" featuring the police dog of the north.

Boys Will Seek 100 Members in Week's Campaign

Team workers on the Y. M. C. A. boys' membership campaign will meet to make plans at a supper, Tuesday night, as a start of the week's work. According to present plans, there will be five teams, each consisting of about five men, but the number of men working will continually increase, because every new member will immediately start working for his team.

A large chart has been placed in the boys' department, showing the plan for a football field, on which each of the five teams is represented by one of the "big ten" football teams. Each new member which the team secures advances their ball five yards. The goal this year is 100 new members.

Prizes will be awarded to individuals securing the most new members. Among the awards offered are a set of boxing gloves, a pair of basketball shoes, a knife and boys' department pennants. Meetings and suppers will also be held Thursday and Friday nights, and the closing meeting, at which all new members and workers will be present, will be given Monday night. Awards will be made at this time.

Youth to Face Fond du Lac Judge

Arrested in Janesville, Saturday, for the theft of money from a Fond du Lac restaurant the day previous, Harold Gibson, 22, was taken to Fond du Lac, Sunday, by officers of that city who came here for him. He was to be arraigned in court there Monday on a charge of larceny. Gibson, a non-resident New York as his home, it is alleged he stole several hundred dollars out of the restaurant proprietors' trunk.

The Newark Farm Boys' club has a good membership list. The leader is Roy Cole.

The Milton Pioneer Younger Boys' club has resumed for the year under the leadership of Prof. C. L. Oakley of Milton College. The executive committee of the club is made up of Eddie Ellis, Pres.; Robert Waterman, Secretary; and Grant Coon, Treasurer.

Badgers Resume Work for Illinois
Madison—Coach Jack Ryan Monday was ready to begin a week of driving practice with his Wisconsin football men in preparation for the tilt with Illinois at Urbana next Saturday. Badger coaches and scouts are back after scouting the three teams that remain on their schedule this season. A light scrimmage and hard signal practice was in store for the Ryan men Monday. All of the squad is in good condition, according to coaches, Harris and Gerber, who sustained injuries in the Minnesota game, will be ready to enter the lineup, Saturday.

World War Vets in School Talks
Not only will a mass meeting be held in the high school auditorium next Sunday at 8 p. m. in observance of Armistice day, and a supper be given at former World War service men, but the American legion is planning to bring memories back to the children. Veterans of the Great war will appear in the public schools of Janesville on Monday, and many in the rural schools in outlying territory, telling what the day means.

A crowd that will fill the auditorium to capacity is expected at next Sunday night's meeting. It will be the first community service since the armistice was signed on Nov. 11, 1918. The Chamber of Commerce is in charge.

Special appeal is made Monday to all former soldiers and sailors to accept the invitation to supper in the high school cafeteria at 6 p. m. Sunday.

Utilities Men to Speak—W. S. Vivian, Chicago, head of the public relations department of the Middle-west Utilities company, will speak to both convocations of the high school, Tuesday morning, on "Twentieth Century America." He will be the speaker at the Rotary club at noon.

Miss Elsie Howe and Miss Jessica George, librarians, and Miss Elizabeth Peterson, member of the library board, will attend a district library meeting at Delavan Tuesday. Delegates from three counties will attend.

"Shoppers" Named to Analyze City Retail Business

Janesville retail stores are going to be placed under the spotlight of observation. A group of "shoppers" has been appointed by James W. Flisk, Milwaukee, merchandising expert and business builder retained by the Gazette and the Milwaukee Journal, and these people will visit every retail store.

The group will analyze business in detail from an outside point of view. Without the merchant knowing it, the group will visit every retail store.

Look
And note the prettier teeth you see everywhere today

Note how many teeth now glisten where dainty people gather. Mark what added beauty those whiter teeth convey.

Millions now clean teeth in a new way. They combat the film. Accept this test and learn how much that method means to you.

Film a dingy coat
You feel on teeth a viscous film. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats which cloud the beauty of the teeth.

But film does more. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Under old-way methods, very few escaped the film-caused troubles.

Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far more effective than any film combant which contains harsh grit.

The modern way
Dental science has found two effective ways to fight that film, and has amply proved them. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

A new-type tooth paste was created to apply these methods daily. The name is Pepsodent. Now leading dentists the world over advise it, and careful people of some 50 nations use it.

It will surprise you Pepsodent brings these whiter, cleaner, safer teeth in natural ways, without any harmful scouring. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. Those are Nature's agents for fighting acids and digesting starch deposits. Pepsodent gives them a manifold effect, while old ways reduced their power.

On Keeping Up the Roads.

Road building is to become the greatest of our industries in the next ten years according to industrial index. It is hoped by that time we shall have been able to develop a real policy, national in its scope but local in application, so that we may have more than just a few trunk lines of good roads. Not every one lives on a trunk line and not always near one. If a traveler will go about our own Rock county away from the main highways he will see right now at this time, following the rains, a good many miles of very miserable, very exasperating roads.

What we need in Rock county more than anything else is a system of maintenance that will maintain. It is well to know that where miles of county roads are kept in good condition following rains and bad weather generally, there has been in operation the sectional patrol system. Take county highway 11 in the town of Fulton. It has a fine bed, was gravelled well and according to the best rules of road making. It is now rough, rutty in some places hard to travel at any speed at all. Had it been scraped when it was needed it certainly would have been much better.

Perhaps some day we will have the patrol system with its sectional application and responsibility placed where it may easily be gotten at, instead of the central station system now in use where repairs are made on complaint.

Important information: Christmas is only a little more than a month away.

The Message of Lloyd George.

Lloyd George has gone home. He has had both an ovation and a triumph in America. He has been heard by thousands, his utterances have been read by millions. He came, as he said, for no fixed purpose. Yet he never overlooked a dominant note in every address he made. That was the position we, the United States, occupied in reference to world peace and the necessity of our getting into the European squabble so that we might "save civilization." We have not been impressed deeply with Lloyd George's effort to make us a family in the settlement of the German reparations question. We have our own ideas on that subject. Nor do we forget that Lloyd George was, in many of the hours when the Versailles treaty was in formation, the master mind that constructed it.

But there is one thing to which we will all agree—that the friendship of two great nations of the same language and of the same origin, should not be broken. We have much in common in the world—we are both Pacific powers, both Atlantic powers. We have 3,000 miles of boundary between us and Canada, the greatest of the subordinate nations of the British empire. We have lived in peace and comity with that unarmed border for more than a century. If the time ever should come when Britain and the United States should be matched in war, then we might well fear for the destruction of all civilization. It would remove for the time all restraining influences on the other nations, ready at any moment on the slimmest excuse, to leap at each other's throats.
Neither Great Britain nor the United States is an aggressive nation for war. It would be beyond thought that war should ever come. In that guise, in his role as an apostle of friendship and international peace and comity, Lloyd George has found a responsive America. But because of this we need not follow him into that other adventure in international entanglements which he has pointed out to us as the via bona when it is really the via dolorosa.

The greatest common interest between Brittain and ourselves outside the ties of blood which the famous Admiral Taitt said was "thicker than water" is the one of peace between us for the sake of the peace of the world.

My Own could not even hold his own.

The New York Times calls attention to the fact that only Roosevelt, of all the presidents, was born in a great city. Taft was born in Cincinnati, but all others were either born way out in the rural districts or in smaller cities. Harding was born in a settlement about the size of Emerald Grove and the village near which Coolidge was born is something like Afton in population. When the nation seeks men it does not pick those who have spent most of the time milling around on the streets, waiting in pool halls or reading flippant literature.

An investigator has found that a bee to gather
one pound of honey must travel 43,716 miles.—

How did he figure it?—New York World.
That's easy; he just followed the bee around.

It seems that France does not understand either the language of See, Hughes or Lord Curzon and makes nothing at all out of what Germany is saying.

Governor Parker says the greatest issue of today is the Ku Klux Klan. The governor has a one-track mind and he could not have two issues at the same time. Therefore he cannot see the gin fizzes and sarsaparilla cocktails of his home town of New Orleans while he is looking for the hooded procession up the street. There are other governors who can see just as far as Parker and enforce two laws at the same time.

CUPID IS KIND TO BANDITS

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The recent case of Berthe Mulon,
of the Paris underworld, who refused a reward of 250,000 francs for the betrayal of the man she loved, has created much astonished discussion in the press. In Paris, especially, the leading journalists seem to have been overcome by amazement and for once to have abandoned their usual attitude of cynical detachment. Long and extravagant eulogies of Berthe's noble act have appeared everywhere.

That the girl should remain faithful to her lover, Gabriel Alphonse Mourey, who robbed the American bank, Alfred L. Shattuck, of a fortune in jewels when she might have claimed such a large reward for betraying him to the police, certainly deserves praise, but it is not so extraordinary.

It is a fact well known by criminologists that women rarely betray their bandit lovers or husbands, and American criminal archives abound with instances of their remarkable loyalty. If Mourey had been a respectable business man, Berthe would doubtless have taken great pleasure in fleeing him. But there is some curious fascination about bandits which holds their women absolutely faithful to them. The famous scoundrel, Alphonse, W. L. George, may have hit upon the correct explanation when he pointed out that women are themselves natural outlaws; that having had no share in making the law they regard it as an outrage which they delight to see challenged.

At any rate, it is said that even veteran deputy United States marshals of the southwest, who have led many a posse into the fastnesses of the wilderness in earlier days, can not recall a single case of a bandit husband being betrayed by his wife. Many have been trapped by women. It is true, but these women were abandoned or suspiciously watched when they were in the scum-pidge. Consider the case of the late Pancho Villa. Rewards were placed upon his head at various periods in his career, but none of the women in his life ever made the slightest attempt to collect them.

Another notorious outlaw, for whom time and again a large reward was offered, is Roy Gardner, now serving a long term in prison. According to United States marshals, Gardner was the boldest single-handed train robber with which this country has ever had to contend. His record of crime extended in during the wildest expansions of film and fiction. But he married a nice, attractive girl, who remained profoundly loyal to him. When he was finally caught, strangely enough, it was by an unmarried man,
a mail clerk, who used no other weapon than his fists.

This happened about two years ago and ended an epidemic of mail train robberies that had aroused much indignation throughout the southwest. Always the bandit appeared alone, armed with a revolver, a knife and a leather bag, strapped to his shoulder, in which he carried off the boot-
y. Always he worked with such lightning speed that he had come and gone before his opponents had recovered from their surprise. When captured he was at once recognized as the slippery Gardner, who had escaped from the Federal prison at McNeil's Island, Wash., under the fire of a score of guards. He had been serving a sentence of 50 years. Now it is 75, if he does not again make good his threat to escape. He has escaped from prison three times.

Throughout Gardner's career of banditry he kept an close touch with his wife and nearly was captured once by a posse when he went to visit her. Now that he is in prison
he has left her home in San Francisco and gone
to live near him.

Another bandit romance of real life that not even the fancy of a novelist or scenario writer
could excel for beauty is credited to Henry Starr, whose banditry extended over 25 years, a period
many times the length of the ordinary criminal career. Repeatedly imprisoned and even sentenced to hang for murder, he managed to squirm out of difficulties by guile and ruse, and with brief interruptions of exemplary living he carried on his career of outlawry in the most scientific and sanguine manner for three decades.

Henry Starr's romance began in the dramatic fashion of the best moving picture serials. It was a beautiful spring evening, 20 years ago,
and the bandit was engaged in his usual occupation of holding up a western train. While his followers worked busily in the coaches, Starr exactly directed the job from a train platform.
Suddenly, a girl leaped from the train and ran to the platform, where she found Starr. She vanished into the night. The outlaw immediately followed, and after hours of fruitless seeking he found her. She was nervous and exhausted. He had her cared for at his camp until she could be taken to her home in Missouri.
Then realizing that he loved her, the outlaw risked capture to court her. Eventually, they were married, and it is said they lived happily.

It is generally supposed that only degraded women marry outlaws. As a matter of fact, it is the bad men who usually capture the virtuous daughters of good families, who have lived a sheltered life. Historical record shows that the James brothers mingled with the best society of Santoga, N. Y., in their day the chief center of fashion—and were very nearly turned into respectable business men by a couple of wealthy debutantes.

As it was, fate intervened, and Jesse returned home and married his cousin, whose guardian was a clergyman. She is described as a beautiful girl, well educated and gently reared—a reigning belle of Kansas City. Jesse and she were boy and girl together. They attended the same Sunday school and grew up together until the Civil war separated them. When she first received word that he had become an outlaw she would not believe it, but eventually she soon became reconciled to the idea for he often visited her in Kansas City, bringing the police and others who were lying in wait for him.

Once, when he was visiting her home, five officers, headed by the sheriff, came to arrest him.
Fortunately, the girl discovered them in time, and Jesse concealed himself under a bush beside the door step. There he lay throughout the search, with pistol cocked and ready for service. The men searched the house from top to bottom. One of them even came and stood on the step just over Jesse's head but went away without seeing him. This was not unlucky for the outlaw, because if he had been discovered Jesse would undoubtedly have killed every man in the party.
Jesse and his girl were finally married secretly in the home of a mutual friend. They spent their honeymoon in rapid flight across the country into Texas. For years they lived a homeless, wandering life, in the constant shadow of danger, but Mrs. James was always a devoted wife and a good mother.

Journalism style of astronomy, says the old earth of ours, is 378,000,000 miles away from where we were a year ago. There is a mighty good man at the steering wheel since we have traveled all that distance and never hit a thing.

The appalling speed of 260 miles an hour
made by an airplane causes wonder at the possibilities of the heavier than air machine. Only human endurance stands in the way of annihilation of time completely, it would seem.

Uncle Abram Haversack says marriage is like buying an auto. It is not the first cost but the accessories one has to buy later, that makes it so expensive.

JUST FOLKS

THE PASSING OF BEAUTY
Trees are turning red and gold,
Now the year is growing old,
But the leaves are fluttering down
To the gutters of the town;
And the beauty of it all
Tells us plainly: It is fall.
It is fall and summer's gone,
Winter's swiftly coming on.

Roses pink and roses white
Make a very lovely sight,
But I cannot say the year
When I see them on a bier,
Tinged with sadness every bloom
Lighting up the silent room.
For the petals "one by one,"
Whisper this: Your friend has gone.

Distant purple, flaming red,
Well I know that summer's dead;
Woods of beauty, hills aglow,
Lingered heralds of the snow.
Though I cannot say I heard
All your wealth of shilling gold,
Still beyond your calm I hear Winds of winter howling near.

Who's Who Today

LORD ATHLONE
While the recent appointment of the Lord
Athlone to be governor general of the autonomous South African Union, is regarded primarily as a felicitous one because of the fact that he is a brother of Queen Mary of England, he is thoroughly familiar with the needs of Africa and well known to the leaders—especially the older ones—in the colonial states of Africa. He is also, right of all, a soldier.

Since he received his early military education at Sandhurst he has played an important part in Great Britain's military activities. He has been serving long as an officer in the seventh Hussars and the Royal Horse guards.
Against the Matabele in 1896, the earl saw much service and when the Boer war broke out he was sent to the office of Kimberley and Mafeking
in addition to figuring in practically every other important action of that South African conflict. His work earned him the British Distinguished Service Order in addition to several citizenships.

He played an important part in Britain's military organization in the world war, serving the entire four years on the French and Belgium fronts like a scold—tall and erect. He was born April 14, 1874 in Kensington palace.
He studied at Eton before going to Sandhurst.
His mother was the universally loved Princess Alice of Cambridge. His father was the Duke of Teck. Lord Athlone was the third son.

THE ATTACK OF HEMORRHOIDS

The hemorrhoidal veins may be overdistended, dilated and enlarged (varicose veins) for a considerable period, or indeed for many years, before the subject realizes that he has piles.
The first "attack of piles" occurs when the effected vein or veins become inflamed (phlebitis); this inflammation
or phlebitis is brought on, each time by infection, that is, by invasion of the mucous membrane and the tissues of the wall of the vein by germs. The why and wherefore of the germs will not point out presently, if I don't forget it.

Here we must repeat that (1) about one out of every three cases purporting to be "piles" are not piles at all;
if treated as piles only, disappointment or harm can result; (2) complete and permanent relief is obtainable by removal or obliteration of the affected veins by one or another surgical means; and (3) constipation or predisposition to or aggravates piles and piles constipation. The unhygienic habit of taking physics predisposes to or aggravates both conditions, so that it is a very bad state of affairs indeed
—but people just will have their own
way despite what I tell 'em.

Adhering cheerfully to my custom
I refrain from going into the symptoms, but it is good for everybody's health to have just an inkling about the different classes of piles. There is the ordinary external hemorrhoid,
painless in the quiescent or usual state,
but very painful when "attacked." It is, in that, when the vein is inflamed (phlebitis), particularly when a thrombus or clot forms within the vein, and the patient suffers a great deal of pain. It demands incision and turning out of the clot. A second class is internal or "blind" pile, which is prone to bleed; the bleeding is in many cases profuse and may be painful, eventually, it undermines the health very gravely, whether the victim knows his trouble is piles or not.
A third type is "itching" piles. It is a very bad state of affairs indeed
—but people just will have their own
way despite what I tell 'em.

Q. Is there a law regarding the reading of the Bible in the public schools of the United States?
A. According to a survey made by the bureau of education, six states require that portion of the Bible be read daily in the schools. Six other states specifically permit by law
the reading of the Bible in public schools. In 19 states and the District of Columbia the law is silent on the subject, while in the remaining states no law is in force. The courts are divided on the subject. In some states the reading of the Bible is permissible. In five states, where laws otherwise contain no specific provision on the subject, the courts have rendered decisions favorable to Bible reading. In 10 states it is not permissible to read the Bible at school times in the public schools, while in Michigan and California the matter is at present undecided in the courts.

Q. What substance on the moon clouds the surface and forms what we generally term the man in the moon?
A. The lunar observatory says the darker and lighter markings seen on the moon are due to irregularities of its surface, such as mountains, valleys, craters and basins. The darker portions are of lower elevation than the lighter and may formerly have been sea-bottoms. Temporary changes of shading are caused by variation of lightness and darkness of the sun's shining on the surface.

Q. Please give the colors of the hosiery worn at Oxford, Cambridge, Yale, Harvard, Princeton, etc.
A. The colors are as follows: Oxford, dark blue; Cambridge, light blue; Yale, blue; Harvard, crimson;
Princeton, orange and black.

Q. How can a man ride a side saddle, and what are the advantages as compared with the cross saddle?
A. The side saddle is still widely used by women riders at horse shows and for hunting. Many people consider that a woman looks more graceful on a side saddle, and it is agreed that it shows off both horse and rider to advantage. The cross saddle is generally regarded as more practical for hard riding and as safer in jumping. It is better for the horse as the weight of the rider is distributed evenly, and the saddle is lighter than the side saddle.

A neglected cough—The beginning of many a dangerous disease

WHEN your strength is exhausted and the delicate tissues of your throat and lungs are raw and sore from coughing, you may find an easy cure
to disease—bronchitis, pneumonia, even tuberculosis. That is why it is so important to break up a cough promptly.
For more than fifty years thousands of families have relied upon Dr. King's New Discovery to stop coughs. It does this quickly and naturally without any bad
after-effects whatsoever, by stimulating the mucous membranes to throw off the clogging secretions. It has an agreeable taste. All druggists.

ASHES ENTOMBED IN FAMOUS ABBEY

Notables Attend Ceremony in Honor of Andrew Bonar Law.

(By Associated Press.)
London.—The ashes of Andrew Bonar Law, who was prime minister of Great Britain for seven months and perhaps the most modest man on whom that honor ever was conferred, were entombed today in Westminster Abbey.
In this shrine, wherein the nation holds its most sacred rituals, both solemn and happy—coronations, weddings and funerals—were assembled a distinguished company of nearly 2,000 persons, representing all who are prominent and important in the British world. There were members of the royal family, several hundred men from the houses of parliament, the premiers of the British dominions, the chiefs of the army, navy, judiciary and civil service, members of the diplomatic corps, numerous leaders of finance and business from which spheres the late statesman had passed into a life of politics.
Also there were present many persons famous in literature and in the arts, and one large group composed of everyday British citizens, thousands of whom had waited for hours outside the Abbey in the hope of being fortunate enough to gain admittance.
Post Wheeler and members of the American embassy staff represented the United States.

John Winninger Players Coming

The John D. Winninger players will open a week's run at the Apollo theater beginning Monday, Nov. 12, the seven days engagement consisting of an entirely new repertoire, with plays which have had extended runs on Broadway.

The opening play is a comedy, "Six Cylinder Love," which, written by William Anthony McGuire of Chicago, now of New York City, made the playwright famous, the play having been listed by Burns Mantel, New York dramatic critic, as one of the best of that year. It has to do with the married life of a couple who live beyond their income.

Some of the other plays for the week are: "It's a Boy," a later success from the pen of William Anthony McGuire; "The Taming of Kate," by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, co-authors of many farces, including "Lombardi, 144," and "The Bad Man," by Porter Emerson.

This play was also chosen, the season that it played on Broadway, as one of the 10 best plays of the year.

Vaudville specialties will be introduced each night between acts.

Among the most elaborate sets is a new series, "The Children's Classics," containing such books as "Pennywise Fairy Tales," "Treasure Island," "A Christmas Carol," "Gulliver's Travels," "Cinderella and Stories," "The Maid for Boys and Girls," and "Two Years Before the Mast." All of the books have been illustrated in color by the most famous illustrators of England and America, among whom are Walter Crane, F. D. Bedford, Warwick Goble, Charles C. Knight, John Tennille, Eric Pape and the Poythorsts.

Other books, which should find special favor with younger children, include "Memories of a London Doll," edited by Clara W. Hunt; "The Nocturnal Forest," by Stewart Edward White; and "Charlie and His Kitten, Topsy," by Hill and Maxwell.

These books will be on display at the library during next week, but cannot be drawn out until after that time. During the week librarians have made special preparations for the occasion, and have selected books as gifts for children as well as recommending books from the library.

HUGE SUMS LOST IN MARK COLLAPSE

Americans Drop 500 to 750 Million, Investing in German Money.

New York — Between $500,000,000 and $750,000,000 has been lost by American investors through the collapse of the German mark, the New York Tribune stated today.

English investors lost about $500,000,000 and other countries a like amount, the newspaper continued, declaring that Germany not only had repudiated its national debt, but had been the cause to the extent of about $2,000,000,000.

The loss includes the funds of thousands of small investors, it was said, many of them German-Americans who bought marks at two cents each, or more, in the belief that they would recover. It also includes money invested in German bonds payable in paper money.

Not Deliberate Plot
Francis H. Sigson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company, expressed doubt as to whether Germany would be able to establish a stable currency before a basis of a settlement of the reparations question was decided upon, the Tribune stated, citing him as follows:

"I do not believe the decline of the mark to its present state of worthlessness was due to a deliberate plot on the part of Germany to evade responsibility of its paper money. The decline of the mark began soon after the war was declared, and it has declined ever since as a result of Germany's economic situation."

"It would be impossible to tell how much American money was put into German marks. It would be as easy to estimate how many grasshoppers there are in a field of wheat. It is my opinion that an agreement must be reached on the reparations question before any stable monetary system can be established in Germany."

"I know of no parallel to the wiping out of a nation's currency since the start of the present war. It was perhaps the collapse of the Italian money, and of Confederate money during the Civil war."

CAN YOUR HIRED MAN EQUAL THIS RECORD?

Waterloo, Ia.—Harry Friedley picked 25 bushels of corn in one hour and 20 minutes to win the Dennington township corn husking contest at Sage Brothers' farm, defeating four others.

If this rate could be maintained he would have husked 187½ bushels in 10 hours.

Joe Sago went at it bare-handed with his husking hook and got second place. His load measured 23 bushels and 58 pounds. Earl Brooks was third with 22 bushels and two pounds of corn. D. W. Friedley took fourth on 20 bushels and 35 pounds. At even 20 bushels were husked by Willard Tolson.

Gleaners followed each contestant. For each pound of corn left unhusked the final weight. In the case of Mr. Tolson, 200 pounds were deducted before his final amount of bushels was computed. This amounts to almost three bushels lost. Seventy pounds the bushel were figured.

Forty pounds, the lowest amount deducted, for gleanings, was taken from the corn of Joe Sago and Earl Brooks.

They will be other township contests to decide those who can compete with Harry Friedley for the county honor.

AMBIGUOUS WORD BLOCKING PARLEY

Does It Mean German's "Present" or "Actual" Capacity for Payment.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923, The Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington—One French word—actuelle—is blocking an agreement between France and the United States relative to American help in adjusting the all-important problem of German reparations.

When Premier Poincare used the word in describing what he hoped would be the scope of the commission of experts, he may have meant Germany's "present" capacity to pay, but he also may have intended to speak of Germany's "actual" capacity to pay as distinguished from her theoretical ability.

This ambiguity is in process of being clarified. Informal conversations between the diplomatic representatives of the French and American governments at Washington and Paris are proceeding, and all stories of a break-up of the conference are based on the idea that the French premier wants to block the conference. Opposed to this is his cordial acceptance in principle of American offers to help in the settlement of the reparations problem.

Established fact that having once won American co-operation from an administration which has scrupulously held itself aloof from European affairs for nearly ten years, the French government and European opinion generally would not take kindly to the wrecking of the first real proposal of help that has come forth since the deadlock began.

What French Note Means

What is going on behind the scenes at the moment is of critical importance, but the public mind need not be troubled by the informal utterances of the French foreign office in the press that it was concerned by French to limit the scope of the inquiry to Germany's present capacity to pay and that consideration of Germany's future capacity or any other subject should be excluded.

Without waiting for an official expression on the subject from the French government, President Coolidge and the cabinet decided the effect of such limitations and came to the conclusion that it was wise to inform France—also through the press—that such a limitation would make futile the work of any inquiry body and that America was so much affected by the suggestion of limitation as to doubt seriously whether it was worth while participating at all.

Having made a gesture of help, the United States of indifference, and all those people who have been clamoring for American co-operation with Europe would see clearly once for all that nothing could be done in Europe without the consent of the French government.

No Formal Reply

Thus far the French government has not written its formal reply to the American government as to the scope of the inquiry. The French sent out "feelers" which have been found America unilaterally opposed to an inquiry that shall not inquire into the real essentials of the controversy. Finding American objections, the French government cannot afford to take the responsibility for the break-up of the parley as it would prove splendid ammunition for an opposition party in France and might even mean the overthrow of the Poincare ministry.

For the facts of the situation indicate that France would not lose her freedom of action by right to reject the findings of the commission of inquiry and no government could justify a refusal to determine facts. The jockeying of President Coolidge with technical phrases in the natural habit of his legal and precise mind, but in the end he cannot justify a destruction of the world's only hope for a European settlement at the moment and he is as well aware of that today as he was the day the British and American governments by mutual agreement gave publicity to the text of the official invitation.

Premier Poincare could not refuse to accept in principle then and he cannot afford to set up obstacles that cast doubt on the sincerity of his first acceptance.

Coolidge's Clear Statement

The best informed opinion here is that verbal ambiguities and legal technicalities will be swept aside in another few days and the parley of experts assured. Incidentally, President Coolidge himself has cleared up the doubt raised by Senator McNamara's recent statements. Mr. Coolidge has let it be known that the American experts will not be appointed by or represent the United States government, but will act in an advisory capacity to the reparations commission.

BACK TO HIS CELL
KUFAHL IN EFFORT
TO GET BAIL BOND

farmer, convicted murderer, who in a few days will know whether he will spend the rest of his life in the state penitentiary or get a new trial.

To secure Kufahl's freedom from the jail pending the trial, which probably will be in February, his attorneys are expected to apply at once to a Walworth county circuit court commissioner for bail. This was attempted when Kufahl was held as a material witness. Should the man be convicted he may be punished by the same sentence as is given to the actual perpetrator of the crime.

Additional light was thrown on the relations of Kufahl and Mrs. Schaudé in her testimony during the afternoon when she admitted with bowed head that a great deal of their correspondence was indecent, as was clearly shown in court by the questions put to her by Attorney W. C. Zabel, of Milwaukee. She did not want to explain one sentence in a letter which she wrote to Kufahl because she said she "was ashamed."

Jealousy Enters

An element of jealousy by Mrs. Schaudé of another woman, Mr. Zabel sought to show in questioning her concerning receipt of a letter from Kufahl which was written to him by a woman who signed herself as a cousin. Although not saying that it made her jealous, Mrs. Schaudé admitted on the stand that she told her lover that it annoyed her.

After receipt of the letter from Kufahl at McGrath, Minn., Mrs. Schaudé went to visit him for two weeks, remained with him in the improvised home in a garage, but after he had refused, she said she wasn't ready and couldn't make plans. That was in July of this year, and in September she attempted to poison her four children.

The woman confessed that she had always felt that Ernest Kufahl was honest and upright in his dealings with her.

"You do now, don't you?" asked Mr. Zabel.

"No, I don't now," Mrs. Schaudé tore up well during all questioning concerning the poisoning of her husband, but was noticeably remorseful in the thought of what she had attempted to do to her children. She stuck to her story that she did not believe the strychnine which Ernest Kufahl put in the prune juice would kill her husband, but would double the pain as he told her.

"What pains were your children suffering that caused you to do them with strychnine?" the attorney asked.

Mrs. Schaudé was silent.

The Element of Money.

Apparently with a desire to show that the motive for Kufahl's part in the disposal of Ed Schaudé was the money which would come within his reach on marrying the widow, District Attorney Godfrey asked Mrs. Schaudé to recount a conversation during one week end at the Schaudé home in Whitewater after her husband's death when Kufahl, then at a sanitarium at Wauwatosa, spent the week end with her.

"Ernest came to my house from Wauwatosa and spent the week end. He said how nice I looked and how much good it had done him to spend a week end there," I said. "Ernest, what was it there in me you were giving him a liking to?" He said, "Would you like to know?" I said, "Yes, I really would like to know." "Well," he said, "I thought if I ever married you I would take some of your money and send it to my folks. My mother has been sick and I have had big doctor bills all my life." He said he was only fooling. I said, "When you get me, all you get will be this house." I said, "If you ever played a trick on me like that, married or not married, I'd throw you over and tell everything I know."

He said, "You promised faithfully you wouldn't tell," and he said, "I told you I didn't mean to do it. You are the one I will make suffer for this." With Mr. Schaudé when he died and you were the one who carried it (the poisoned prune juice). I was up stairs to bed. If it ever comes out, I can say I knew nothing about it. I can clear myself. Promise me you won't ever tell, even if you get angry or anything turns up," and he said again, "If you ever do tell, you are the one who is going to suffer."

Borrowed $825 of Kufahl.

Mrs. Schaudé admitted that Ernest Kufahl had loaned her $825 without security, money which he had saved from the government allowance to aid her in purchasing her home in Whitewater.

She declared on cross examination that she had forced Ernest Kufahl since the day when he told her he would fix her if she ever breathed a word about the death of her husband.

"And yet you traveled all the way to McGrath, Minn., to see him, wrote him endearing letters and sent him fruit dozens of times?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Schaudé. She admitted that she had never reprimanded Ernest Kufahl for any of his letters of which she was ashamed or that she had ceased to give him an opportunity to force his attentions upon her.

District Attorney Godfrey was asked by Attorney Zabel to produce Mrs. Schaudé's first confession for the purpose of further cross examination. Justice Williams said he did not believe it necessary.

Although suspicious that Edward Schaudé had died of strychnine poisoning, Dr. Charles E. Dike, Whitewater, admitted that he put influenza down on the death certificate, to save the widow and family from scandal, believing the farmer had committed suicide, when he testified.

Dr. Dike said that he had been advised by the district attorney that the examination of the viscera, made since the body of Schaudé was disinterred, has shown the presence of strychnine and that strychnine caused his death. He was present when the body was taken up from its resting place in the Whitewater cemetery three weeks ago.

The Whitewater physician told on the stand of treating Ed Schaudé during his fatal illness for enteric inflammation of the stomach and his surprise when he was called to the home early on the morning of March 18 to find his patient dead. He had made only two visits to the home during the man's illness, these on March 12 and 14, and on the 14th, Dr. Dike testified, Schaudé was improved and that he did not regard his condition as alarming. He said his diagnosis of the man's case was confirmed on his second visit.

His condition after death indicated strychnine poisoning, Dr. Dike said, this being shown by the "early and marked post mortem rigidity" which his body was still warm. He gave as his opinion that strychnine caused his death on the supposition that the facts of the case were as testified to by Mrs. Schaudé.

Strychnine as a medicine is a powerful stimulant and is also a tonic, the physician said in answer to questions by Attorney Zabel. He declared a half a grain of strychnine would cause death and that less than one half might have the same effect. A larger dose might prove fatal more quickly, the doctor said.

Unlike other poisons it does not contract itself in large doses, Dr. Dike told the court. The largest dose he had ever administered as a medicine was a 20th of a grain, and declared a 20th or 15th of a grain would be a large dose. He doubted that a glass of prune juice would conceal two tenths of a grain of strychnine. The amount given Schaudé has not been brought out.

Thought It Suicide.

Attorney Zabel embarrassed Dr. Dike in questioning him concerning his reasons for not bringing his suspicion to the attention of authorities and signing a death certificate that was false. Dr. Dike said he spoke to George Coppins, the undertaker and presiding mourner of Whitewater, about it at the Schaudé home the day of his death, but mentioned it to no one else, not suspecting for a minute that the man had been murdered, but believing him a victim of his own handwork.

This was based, Dr. Dike said, on the story told him by Mrs. Schaudé that just before he died she was awakened by him when he returned from the kitchen. He believed it probable that he had taken the strychnine at that time. Mrs. Schaudé did not tell him that she had given him a stimulant, but that he had vomited. He believed Mrs. Schaudé was telling him the truth, the physician declared.

Dr. Dike would not admit that he subscribed to a lie in giving influenza as the cause of death on the death certificate.

"Were you willing to subscribe to a lie?"

"I didn't consider it a lie,"

"You certified influenza. Did you know that it was false?"

"I was sure he died of strychnine," "And yet you subscribed to a lie." "I didn't consider it a lie. I did it because I thought for the protection of the widow and children it was the best thing to do."

"You knew it was a lie?"

"I didn't consider it a lie."

"You knew it was not the truth?"

"Yes."

"Well, it can't be both."

"Did you know that Schaudé had life insurance?"

"I did at the time I made out the certificate. I didn't realize that you might be a party to cheating a life insurance company out of money?"

"I didn't look at it in that way."

"You wanted to be consistent did you?"

"I try to be."

"That's all," said Mr. Zabel, and Dr. Dike stepped down from the stand.

Spectators Applaud.

During the testimony of Mrs. Nellie Moriarity, Whitewater, a neighbor of Mrs. Myrtle Schaudé, the courtroom rang with applause in a demonstration which followed Justice Williams censuring Attorney Zabel for rough tactics on cross examination.

Mrs. Moriarity had testified that she was called to the Schaudé home after the husband's death and noticed the rigidity of the body, and that Kufahl was fully dressed, while Frank Bretschneider, the other boarder, was only partially clothed.

Attorney Zabel sought to draw from the witness what she learned concerning what was given as causing Schaudé's death. The woman said she did not ask, but told her husband about her suspicions.

"If you were as curious as all women are why didn't you inquire?" District Attorney Godfrey objected and Justice Williams said: "Mr. Zabel, you have gone far enough. It would not be common decency for her to go into a home and ask those questions."

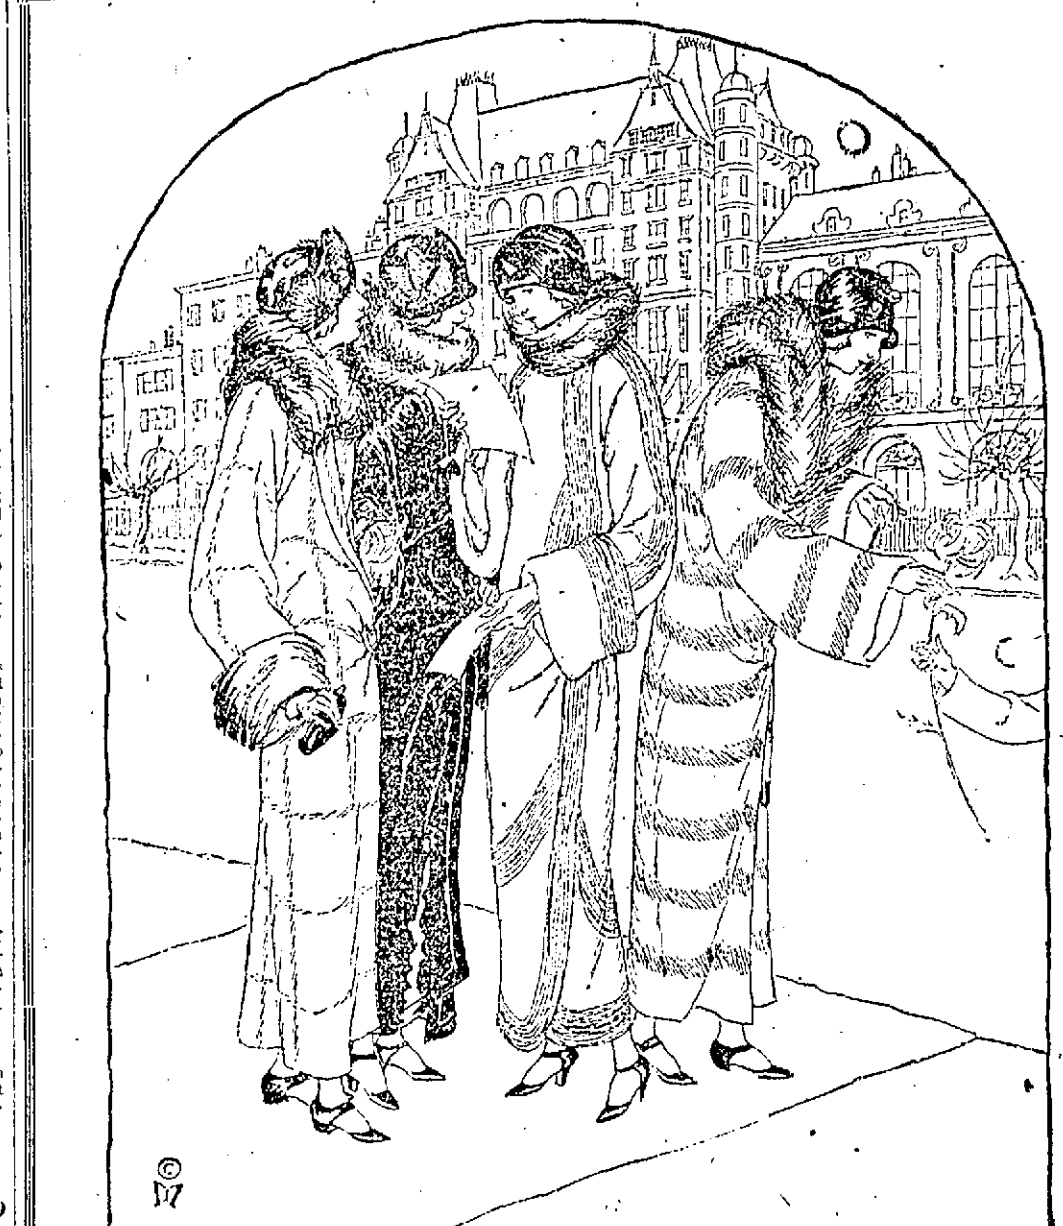

A large majority of the spectators, many of whom were from Whitewater, applauded. The crowd of Judge Williams reminded them that they were in a courtroom, and silence reigned while the cross examination was continued.

Only four witnesses having been called, the state rested, and the defense, not desiring to put Kufahl or any other witnesses on the stand, asked for a discharge, and District Attorney Godfrey asked for the customary motion.

"It becomes my duty at this time to hold the accused for trial and find that an offense has been committed, and order him remanded to the custody of the sheriff," said Justice Williams.

Kufahl was then taken to jail by Sheriff Wylie. Deputy Sheriff Will Cusack, Mrs. Wylie, Mrs. Anna McCarthy helped take Mrs. Schaudé back to her cell which she left for the first time since her nervous breakdown more than five weeks ago.

The next chapter in the case will be written Friday when Mrs. Schaudé has her preliminary examination in the same courtroom.
